Credentials 2011

Home remodeling cannot be placed on an assembly line. Everything is done by hand; bespoke.

Our labour produces elegance. Each piece of wood—every brush stroke—is unique. As guests in your home, we know this level of consideration for craft will be appreciated.

As builders, we believe it imperative.

David Wilkes

David is a graduate of Wolverhampton University's School of Engineering and the Built Environment, one of England's most respected engineering and construction programs. It was here that David learned how to channel his understanding of the multi-disciplinary elements at play when remodeling a home. David's fluency of architecture and design distinguishes his process. Over the past 25 years he has built lasting relationships with many of Austin's award-winning architects and designers. He is a green building professional-with significant expertise in environmentally sound practices-and a member of the Austin chapter of the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI). Noteworthy projects are presented in Stylish Sheds and Elegant Hideaways, House Transformed and multiple remodeling publications, all demonstrating the breadth of David's ingenuity.

Catherine Wilkes

Born and raised in Louisiana, Catherine has been involved in home remodeling since her youth, observing her father's practice. She graduated from Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge and obtained her BA in Advertising. Catherine also received her MBA from St. Edward's University. Following her graduate studies, she earned her LEED AP credentials to support Austin's growing desire to build the green way. This certification exemplifies the Wilkes' practice of marrying tradition with contemporary and novel methods for home remodeling. Catherine is also a member of the Austin chapter of the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI) in order to continue to enrich her knowledge of new and evolving best practices.

David Smith

As the in-house Project Manager, David oversees activity on site and works closely with David Wilkes on overall site management. Prior to joining the firm, he had his own framing company for 25 years and has also engaged in general contracting. Currently he is studying for a graduate degree in engineering.
